Inspirational Quote

How important it is to name our fears, to challenge the inner voices that are urging us to run away, or to hide, or to freeze and try to blend in with our surroundings until the trouble has gone by. When Jesus rises up to confront the storm, he offers us an example to imitate. Engage your deepest fears. Name them, confront them, push back at them. -Br. David Vryhof

Church Picnic/ Farewell for Rebecca: You are invited to the parish hall for a church picnic after the 10 am service today. We will share lunch and we will also have an opportunity for a formal farewell for Rebecca, although she is here till the end of July. Please come along. It will be fun.

Retreat: I am leaving this evening for the Convent of the Sisters of St. John the Divine in Toronto, where I will be on retreat this week. I will be praying for you and our church this week. Please pray for me. Rev. Ann Turner will take the Sunday services next week (June 19), and Rev. Ed Trevors is on call for pastoral emergencies. The wardens have his number, if you need him. I will return late on the 19th

Music Surveys: Thank you to those of you who have returned the music surveys. It's been interesting reading what you like and your suggestions. If you haven't already filled one in, it isn't too late, since our search committee hasn't met yet. Please do give us your feedback. It will help us get an organist who is a good fit.
